left on your 18- or 24-month time clock. (MONTH/YEAR) (NUMBER OF MONTHS)

When you have months on the 18- or 24-month time clock, you may be able to meet the Welfare-to-Work rules with more kinds of activities than after the 18- or 24-month time limit is reached.

Allowable activities during the 18- or 24-month period include, but are not limited to, unsubsidized work, subsidized work, work experience, adult basic education, and job training.

Your worker will talk with you about your Welfare-to-Work activities. Your activities will be based on the results of your CalWORKs assessment, learning disability evaluation, your education and work background, and available jobs in your local area.

When your 18- or 24-month time clock ends, you can only meet the Welfare-to-Work rules through unsubsidized work, community service, and/or United States Department of Labor Welfare-to-Work Grant paid work experience.

- Have a verified learning disability; and
- Have a signed Welfare-to-Work plan and did Welfare-to-Work activities that did not consider your learning disability evaluation and need for reasonable accommodations; and
- You did not make satisfactory progress or benefit from your Welfare-to-Work activities.
